

Holocaust Memorial

Miami Beach

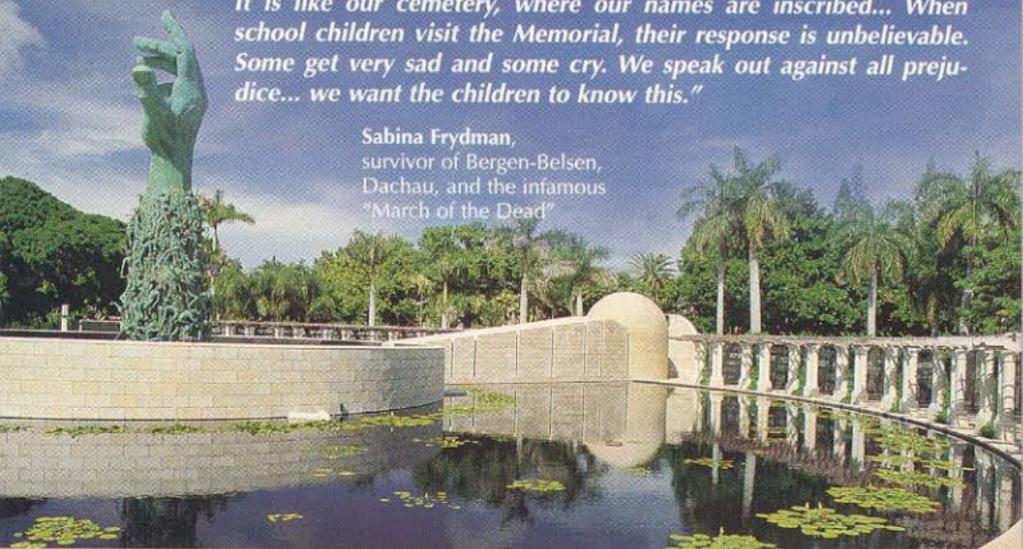

A Sculpture of Love and Anguish

We Must Never Forget

"This memorial is very dear to me. It is like our cemetery, where our names are inscribed... When school children visit the Memorial, their response is unbelievable. Some get very sad and some cry. We speak out against all prejudice... we want the children to know this."

Sabina Frydman,
survivor of Bergen-Belsen,
Dachau, and the infamous
"March of the Dead"

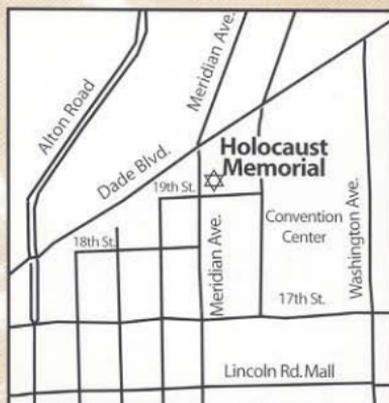

The Holocaust Memorial, 1933-1945 Meridian Avenue, provides a dramatic tribute to the six million Jewish victims of Nazi terrorism during World War II. In a powerful display of pain and suffering, at the center of the Memorial is a startling monument — a bronze arm and hand stretched toward the sky, and struggling to climb it, life-sized sculptures depicting the horrified victims of the Holocaust. Around the monument, a photographic history of some of the darkest years in human history is etched into black granite. The walls chronicle the images of the now-infamous death camps.

Designed by acclaimed sculptor Kenneth Treister, FAIA, the Holocaust Memorial is constructed of Jerusalem stone and marble. The sculpture itself is part of a lily-filled reflection pond in the middle of the plaza.

Visitors may stroll at their own paces through the various exhibits.

The Holocaust Memorial opened in February 1990, and has achieved national acclaim. Visitors from all over the world are making this an important part of their Miami Beach experience.

Free guided group tours are available upon request. The Memorial educational and cultural events are free and open to the public.
